

LIONARE IN HOSPITAL WARD

John H. Onderdonk, Victim of Locomotor Ataxia, Picked Up in the Street and Finally Sent to Blackwell's Island.

FRIENDS MAKE SEARCH AND FIND HIM THERE.

Left Home Last Saturday and Wandered to Sixtieth Street and First Avenue—Diamond Ring Missing.

John H. Onderdonk, who is said to be a nephew of the late United States Justice Onderdonk, reported to be worth between $100,000 and $150,000, who disappeared from his home, No. 50 West Twelfth street on Saturday morning, was found at the Metropolitan Hospital on Blackwell's Island by his physician, Dr. M. B. Feeny, a sanitary engineer, of No. 20 Seventh street. Dr. Feeny today brought his patient back to the city and placed him in St. Vincent's Hospital.

Mr. Onderdonk, who is sixty years old, was registered at the hospital and at the Charity Department as "John B. Onderdonk," and was transferred to the island from Bellevue Hospital, where he had been sent from Presbyterian Hospital on Saturday morning. He was found by a policeman at the corner of First avenue and Sixtieth street, apparently sick, and was sent to the Presbyterian Hospital, where his case was diagnosed as senile.

After his disappearance from home Mrs. M. B. Dremer with whom he boarded, notified his brother, Andrew Onderdonk, who is in the lumber business at Greenwich, Conn., and he, with Dr. Feeny, searched the city until they located the missing man.

Dr. Feeny said that Mr. Onderdonk was suffering from locomotor ataxia, a disease which is common among the elderly. He said that the patient had been in the produce business at Barclay and Washington streets. About twelve years ago he retired from business, and three months ago moved to his home, No. 50 West Twelfth street, his home for many years, to his present address.

A diamond ring, valued at $500, which he wore when he was in the city, was missing, but Mr. Onderdonk had no recollection of where it had gone beyond the fact that he had lost it.

HUSBAND FINDS HIS BRIDE IN FLAMES

Mrs. Norton's Dress Catches Fire from Lighted Gas Stove, and It Is Feared Her Burns Will Prove Fatal.

Mrs. Jessie Norton, the bride of Frank Norton, was fatally burned at her home, No. 27 Barrow street, early today.

Mrs. Norton had arisen early to prepare her husband's breakfast, and was moving about near a lighted gas stove. The wind-carried her dress to the flames on the stove and instantly her clothes were ablaze. She screamed and then started to run.

Hearing his wife's screams, Norton arose and ran after the young woman. He overtook her and wrapped a blanket about her form, but not before his own night clothes had caught fire and his hands had been badly burned.

Neighbors came to the assistance of the Nortons and found the wife already unconscious and the husband in great distress. Mrs. Norton was sent to St. Vincent's Hospital.

POLICEMAN KILLS MAD DOG.

Patrolman John Devlin, of the West Twentieth street station, shot and killed a mad dog today in front of No. 400 West Twenty-second street.

FALL FASHIONS SHOW A REAL GLIMPSE OF PARIS.

Brooklyn Shoppers Crowding Batterman's to See Dresses in Hats and Stunning Coats.

Brooklyn has a miniature Paris within its confines. The attractive spot is H. Batterman's large store at Broadway and Flushing avenue, where a beautiful display of fall millinery and costumes of all kinds forms a magnet for femininity. The miniature Paris with its exclusive styles is remarkable for the fact that the Parisian importations are shown at just half the price as anywhere else.

In the millinery display are a charming picture hat of black chenille and silk, trimmed in four black ostrich plumes; a stunning hat of terra cotta, shaded down from rose, sailor shape, and trimmed with three plumes; a beautiful brown model of mirror velvet, with shirred crown trimmed with autumn leaves and a shaded paradise egret; and a Virgil creation of sage green mirror velvet, with pink crown, all of which are striking examples of numbers of beautiful models that make the millinery rooms look like a section of Paris.

For misses and children there are just as many exclusive styles as for the mamma, while another feature is the show of mourning hats. In the coat display a striking three-quarter length coat of gray, trimmed in burnt orange braid, is the crown of interest.

Beautiful gowns, opera coats, fancy wraps—in fact, every novelty the fashion world could desire, is shown in abundance at the Batterman store.

And from the exhibit of millinery and costumes that forms one of the most attractive displays in Brooklyn has been in the window of the store, the latest styles of the new costumes and wraps of the new season.

WOMEN IN AUTO TRIED TO ESCAPE

Man Run Down by Big Touring Machine Was Dying When Messenger Boy Followed and Caused Arrest.

CHAUFFEUR HAD PUT HIM IN THE MACHINE.

At Police Station Well-Dressed Women and Men Gave Fictitious Names—Two Men Held in $2,500 Bail Each.

After knocking down a man at Eighty-first street and Central Park West today and dragging him prostrate and screaming with his body caught in the running gear of their big touring automobile, two women, both handsomely dressed, accompanied by one of the men in the car, sprang to the street and made off.

The second man also jumped from the machine, bundled the conscious and moaning man into his arms, placed him on the rear seat of the automobile and was about to make off when other automobilists, who had witnessed the accident, remonstrated and demanded that the man at least be made comfortable. Just at this time Policeman Clark, of the West Sixty-eighth street station, ran up and called out: "You are under arrest."

The man and the two women had run west through Eighty-first street to Columbus avenue, turned south and continued to run down the avenue to Seventy-seventh street. Then they turned west again. Both women by this time were early exhausted and were sobbing. They did not notice that a little messenger boy ran in front of them and that he seemed to be looking out for some one.

Messenger Boy Called Them.

The running trio had gained Amsterdam avenue and had stopped in the early dawn, thinking that pursuit was impossible, when the little messenger called out:

"Isn't there a policeman anywhere in this town?"

"Yes, there is a policeman here," came from the shadow of a doorway, and Policeman John White, of the West Sixty-eighth street station, ran across the street. Instantly the man and his women companions took to their heels, but the policeman had little difficulty in overtaking them and placing them under arrest.

"You thought you would kill a man and get away with it, did you?" said the messenger boy, as he ran on his way.

The policeman took the man and the two women back to Eighty-first street and Central Park West. They found many persons who had witnessed the accident. He found also that the man who had been injured was George Cunningham, a butcher, thirty years old, living with his wife and three little children at No. 67 Columbus avenue. Both legs had been broken and his right arm fractured. The bones were protruding from the fractures. He was out, bruised and mangled about the body, and he was even then thought to be dying, but he was conscious.

Victim Will Die.

The injured man said that he had alighted from a street car, and had reached the sidewalk when he was run down.

"I believe they were riding on the sidewalk," he told the police. "They must have been going very fast, for I did not see them or hear them coming. They dragged me a block and a half before they stopped the machine."

Cunningham was taken to Roosevelt Hospital and there it was said that he would die.

The two men and two women were taken to the West Sixty-eighth street police station. There every effort was made to conceal the names of the prisoners. The man said he was William Ryan, and that he lived at No. 217 West Forty-second street. The other man said that he was Harry Jones, and that he lived at No. 33 East Eighty-eighth street.

The women then gave their names as Mrs. J. Clark, of No. 208 West Forty-third street, and Miss J. Scott, of the same address.

Both Men Held in $2,500 Bail.

An attorney named Benedict appeared for Ryan, whose right name is Riley, when he and Jones were arraigned before Magistrate Whitman in the West Side Police Court, where it developed that Riley had been a defendant there only a few weeks ago in an automobile case.

Attorney Benedict claimed that his client was not responsible for the accident; that he was simply a passenger in the automobile, which will likely cost a life, and that Jones was running the machine.

"I'm not going to make any mistake," said Magistrate Whitman. "The injured man, I am told, can live only a few hours, and I am going to hold both these men in $2,500 bail in each case."

The case will come up again on Wednesday morning.

AGED COUPLE ARRESTED.

Man and Wife Quarrelled in Street Over $2.

Mary McCormick, sixty, and her husband, Edward, sixty-five, told a strange tale in the Yorkville Court today. They were arrested for disturbing the peace at No. 217 East Fourteenth street, where Mrs. McCormick, a housewife, and her husband, a laborer, were employed at $2 a week.

M McCormick went around to collect the $2 and got into an argument with his wife over it. A crowd collected and the police intervened.

In court Mary told the Magistrate about her husband wanting the money, and said that he was a bad man and that at one time he had been tried on a charge of murder.

The Magistrate sent the McCormicks to the House of the Good Shepherd.

STRAY BULLET DEATHS.

Coroner's Jury Cites for More Stringent Police Work.

Coroner Spohrer today held inquests into the deaths of Marie Kazlovski, five years old, of No. 78 Pike street, and Police Aurienne, twenty-eight years old, of No. 18 Bowery, both of whom were killed by stray bullets.

A jury which heard the evidence in both inquests brought in a verdict recommending that the city authorities adopt more stringent rules regarding the granting of permits to carry concealed weapons and calling upon Police Commissioner McAdoo to enforce the same.

Our Opening Display of The New' Millinery

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 20th, 21st and 22d.

An Exhibit marked by a greater number of exclusive models than we have been able to show for years. The collection not only contains the Most Exquisite of the Greatest Parisian Designers' Creations—

It includes an almost endless variety of adaptations from them—equal to the original in almost every way save cost.

In addition, the creative efforts of our own clever designers.

As a whole, a collection of extraordinary beauty—an exhibit practically matchless—either in or out of New York.

To-morrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

In Connection with the Above Comes Our Opening Display of the New Gowns & Costumes for Women and Misses

Embracing a Showing at Once Strikingly Beautiful and Elegant to a Fault:

Evening and Dinner Gowns. Carriage Costumes and Wraps. Man-Tailored Street Costumes and Separate Shirts. The New Capes for Evening Wear.

And an equally beautiful display of the new Garments for the young Girls and Misses.

And while the showing is very marked in those very desirable garments for the ultra fashionables, we have also been careful to arrange selections to meet the popular purse and to suit every taste, however simple.

A Paquin Street Costume.

A truthful copy of an original Paquin (Paris) model in street costumes will be one of the features of this opening sale at $25.00. The original, costing possibly ten times that price, has been faithfully followed, and the skill shown in shaping its graceful outlines is remarkable. It will be shown in two colors of finest French Broadcloth—black and blue; vest of velvet to match; the jacket lined with superior quality taffeta—sleeves very elaborate—the skirt entirely side-plaited—in a word, a Paquin, and a very swapper one at that—the price ($25.00) will give you some idea of how low our prices are this season on women's fine garments.

A Francis Model Dress.

Now, in speaking of our low prices on really fine garments, what could be more clinching than our price of $55.00 on a Francis (Paris) Model Dress, made of voile a la Fenetre, over guaranteed taffeta, trimmed with lace braid and entire dress, or the same $55.00 will buy here a dress of Chiffon Crepe de Chine—made over taffeta silk, elaborately trimmed with lace and shirring. These elegant costumes cannot remain here long—will you not get one of them?

Handsome Taffeta Street Dresses.

Another example of the modest prices prevailing at the Ehrich Store is found in our offer of handsome Afternoon Dresses of Taffeta Silk at $22.50. The skirt is one mass of plaits. The waist made to match, with high mousquetaire sleeves.

Man-Tailored Walking Suits.

Another extraordinary offer—real Man-Tailored Walking Suits of tan covert and of broadcloth—blue, brown and black. The coats are unusually handsome—plaited in front and back—buttoned with belt—new plaited sleeves—lined throughout with fine satin. The skirts 9-gore flared—and plaited to match coat—would be good value at $25.00 instead of the $17.50 we ask. We show suits ready to wear—as low as $10.75 and up as high as almost any one would care to go.

CAPTAIN OF SCOW HELD FOR MURDER

Remanded to the Coroner on a Charge of Having Caused the Death of Private Hemmett, of Coast Artillery.

Alex. Abrahamson, thirty-seven years old, captain of the scow Flind, now lying at the foot of West Seventy-seventh street, was arraigned before Magistrate Crane in the Harlem Police Court this afternoon charged with the murder of Private Joseph T. Hemmett, of the Eighteenth Coast Artillery, who was murdered on July 30 last, being stabbed to death with a bayonet, and whose body was found floating in the Westchester Creek next morning.

Abrahamson was remanded to Coroner Berrv, of the Bronx, for examination. Hemmett had been drinking the night he met his death, and had been in the company of a young woman at a hotel in Westchester village. When he left the hotel, about midnight, he was under the influence of liquor, and it was thought that he might have got in a fight in the Italian quarter through which he passed. Abrahamson testified before the Coroner that he was the soldier carried on his boat, which was then lying near the Unionport Bridge, and that he had ordered him off. He was, so far as is known, the last one to see Hemmett alive.

It now develops that Abrahamson has been under suspicion for some time, and today Detectives Bessner, Kennedy and Powers, of the Westchester station, arrested him under arrest on his boat. The prisoner protested his innocence, but was remanded for examination to the Coroner.

3 BURGLARIES IN 1 HOUSE IN 1 DAY

Entered Flats, Tested the Silverware Before Taking It, and Escaped with About Everything of Value.

Just to show their utter disregard for the police protection given the city and its residents, three particularly bold burglars broke open and robbed three flats in one building in one day.

They took their time about it and tested the silverware before taking it. The plated ware was cast aside. The thieves were connoisseurs.

The flats are in an apartment-house at the northeast corner of Ninety-second street and Third avenue. Doors were broken open with jimnies and the interior of each flat looked as though a cyclone and swept through it.

The victims and their losses were: George Senel, seven gold watches, two diamond rings, gold bracelet, stockpans, lockets, rings and unset opals, all valued at about $700.

Henry Meek, two gold watches, two diamond cuff links, diamond locket, two diamond stockpans, gold chain, gold pin, cash in safe and unset diamonds, the total value being about $1,000.

Mrs. George Hausson, $200 in cash and some small jewels and trinkets.

Burglars Took Their Time.

The building was deserted on the three lower floors and those on the floors above heard no one moving about. Three different jimnies were used on the doors of the flats and there were evidently guards looking out in the hall.

The burglars took their time, and in the Senel flat collected the silverware and tested a piece of each set by breaking it.

The men who did the job are supposed to be members of a gang that has been working the neighborhood for some time. Within three months the jewelry store of S. Friedman, at Ninety-second street and Third avenue, has been robbed three times. Other burglaries have
